Democrats Arriving in Town for To-Morrow's Convention.

The Renomination of President and Governor Favored.

are almost solid for the renomination of President Cleveland and Gov. Hill. The office-seekers and grumblers have apparently taken a back seat in the councils of the party.

Up to noon to-day very few of the prominent members of the party had reported at the Hoffman House, headquarters of the State Committee. Ex-Mayor Murphy, of Troy, said that the committee would meet this evening to arrange the roll of delegates and select the temporary Chairman. He said that several names had been talked over.

It is understood that Mayor Chapin of Brooklyn and D. Cady Herrick, of Albany were arong those prominently reputioned.

Brooklyn and D. Cady Herrick, of Albany were among those prominently mentioned.

There is a difference of opinion about the make-up of the ticket for delegates.at-large. There is no opposition, as far as learned, to placing Gov. Hill at the head of the delegation from this State. It was rumored at the Hoffman House this morning that he did not desire the honor and would refuse to serve as a delegate at large to the National Conven delegate-at-large to the National Conven-

Several of his steadfast political supporters

Several of his steadfast political supporters who were spoken to on the subject, said they did not know the Governor's wishes on this important matter. Judge Muller was asked if Gov. Hill would head the delegation, and he replied: "I do not know."

A number of the friends of the National Administration appear to be desirous of having the Governoa elected a delegate-at-large. There is no question of Gov. Hill being chosen by a unanimous vote. The question is, Will he consent to serve?

Among those mentioned for delegates-at-large besides Gov. Hill are Mayor Chapin and Hugh McLaughlin, of Brooklyn: ex-Mayor Edward Cooper, Richard Croker, Roswell P. Flower, ex-Mayor Grace and W. Bourke Cockran, of New York; D. Cady Herrick, of Albany: ex-Senator George Raines, of Rochester; Solomon Scheu, jr., of Buffalo; ex-Mayor Murphy, of Troy, and Samuel J. Tilden, of Columbia, nephew of the late Samuel J. Tilden.

DEATH A

CORONER LEVY'S INQUEST CONTINUED TO-DAY.

Where Was Mr. Ferris at the Time Hatch Entered the Scoffeld House !- Mrs. Sco-field Called to Court To-Day in a Suit to Recover Money Not Pald for Furniture-Mr. Scoffeld Sharply Cross-Questioned.

The 800 people who crowded into and around the approaches of City Hall chambers at noon to-day to hear the investigation as to Broker Nathaniel W. F. Hatch's death, looked with especial interest at the stout, gray-haired man with long flowing beard and mustache who came in with Mrs. Sco field.

The man was "Brother-in-Law" David C. Ferris, the rich mining speculator, of 18 Broadway, from whose office Broker Hatch and Mrs. Scofield walked uptown on that fatal Monday a week ago.

Though it is now known that Ferris is perhaps the one man alive most likely to know how Broker Hatch came to be lying dead and how Broker Hatch came to be lying dead and mangied in the yard of 64 West Twentieth street, he has until to-day affected an utter ignorance of what happened at Mme. Fanny's and at the house.

He told the police the day after the tragedy that he stayed at Mme. Fanny's only a few minutes and then went home. But Detective Edward A. Clark, of the Coleman House, tells a story which throws a new and startling light on the case.

He says that at about 8.30 on Monday night Ferris came to the hotel in a state of great excitement and told him he wanted a man and woman shadowed. He took the detective to Mme. Fanny's and showed him Mrs. Scofield and Broker Hatch. He told the detective to watch them and not leave them till they parted.

"If they go to 64 West Twentieth street," he said, "that is the woman's home."

Ferris then left the detective, who carried out his instructions and afterwards reported to Ferris.

It is suppocted that Ferris, either impelled.

to Ferris.

It is suspected that Ferris, either impelled by jealousy or acting a part in some plot against Hatch, loitered about the house after the couple entered, and that he may have some knowledge about the latter's death.

Coroner Levy determined to sift the matter to the bottom and took the precaution of serving a subpœna on Mr. Ferris early this morning, at his house. to Ferris.

morning, at his house.
Charles W. Scofield, the willingly injured husband in the case, was brought down by Officer McGowan from the House of Deten-tion, where he has resignedly passed the last tion, where he has resignedly passed the last three days.

There was a delay of twenty minutes, owing to the non-arrival of Juror Bischoff. Meanwhlie the crowd grew denser, and men who stood at the rear of the room raised themselves on tiptoe to get a glimpse of the woman in the case.

Assistant District-Attorney Hartman sat on the bench with Coroner Levy and watched the case on the part of the people. Mrs. Soofield was elegantly dressed, as usual, and a murmur of admiration followed her as her counsel, Mr. Buck, pushed a way for her through the crowd. She was very pale, but her eyes were bright and she talked very animatedly with her lawyer and Mr. Ferris.

She could not fail to catch the meaning of the buzz of conversation and the hundreds of eyes and opera-glasses directed to the spot where she sat, but no flush of shame gathered on her face and she did not show one sign of discomposure.

Detective Hayes, who had been sent for Mr. Bischoff, brought in the delinquent juror at 1 'clock.

Mrs. Scofield hired that house. When asked to state his business he said, hopelessly, that he was in no business at present.

Q. Please state what you did on the evening of Monday last? A. I took dinner at the Hoffman House and then walked to the Fifth Avenue Hotel. I went home at about 9 o'clock. A few minutes later Mrs. S. came to me again and asked me to leave the house. She said the party who was upstairs would not come down while I was there. I said: "All right, I'll go—for good. Let me get my coat."

Sactoid me I could wait till the morning to get my coat.

I went outside and sat on the next stoop waiting for the man to come out. I talked with Officer McCormack, who was on post. After waiting five hours and seeing no one I re-entered the house to get my things. Mrs. Scofleid ask d me what I was doing. She persuided me to give up my puip see, and I lay down on the lounge. It was not until an hour afterwards that one of the painters showed me the dead body in the yard.

When my wite saw the body she was much distressed. She wrung her hands and cried out "Poor Mr. Haton!" many times.

Coroner Levy questioned Mr. Beofield as to his knowledge of Mr. Perris.

NEW YORK, MONDAY, MAY 14, 1888.

Prior to the calling of the Hatch case by Coroner Levy Mrs. Lillian Scofield put in an appearance in the Chambers of the City Court this morning. She had been summoned to appear by Chief Judge McAdam. upon the application of Nathaniel Ellis and Jacob Marke, counsel for B. L. Solomon's Sons, upholsterers, who are creditors of the woman.

In 1885, in the City Court, the firm obtained a judgment of $271.82 against Mrs. Scofield. Execution issued and was returned unsatisfied. This morning she was to have been examined in supplementary proceedings. She was accompanied by her counsel, Jerome Buck, who urged an adjournment because Buck, who urged an adjournment because his client was compelled to attend the in-quest. It was granted.

HENRY W. HOWLAND MISSING.

No Trace of Him Seen by His Friends Since Last Saturday Evening.

Henry W. Howland, once well known as a notel proprietor and manager, has been lost to his family since last Saturday evening.

He was last seen by his brother-in-law He was last seen by his brother in law at the latter's store in Park place. At his home, 1495 Broadway, it was to-day learned that Mr. Howland had been suffering with a brain trouble for some months past. The members of his family are exceedingly anxious, but hope for the best. Relatives living out of town have been summoned to aid in the search which his family and many of his friends are carrying on.

The Day in Wall Street.

The stock speculation continues to act by contraries. Everybody had the "'tip" before the opening to go short of the market, and the advice was acted upon by not a few of the traders. Instead of going down prices went the other way, and that too at a lively gait. The advance was equal to 1 a 2 per cent., with Terminal in the lead.

The Men Form in Line After Meeting at Clarendon Hall, Where They Heat Cheering News from the West-A Delegation Calls Upon Mayor Hewitt, Who Advises the Men to Give Up The Figet.

The parade of the locked-out-brewers took place this forenoon. From an early hour the men began to assemble at Clarendon Hall, where two meetings were held. The meeting of the Journeymen brewers in the large hall upstairs, was presided over by Jacob Huber. The drivers assembled in the committee-room, where Hermann Folcke wielded he gavel. Both meetings were orderly and mittee-room, where Hermann Folcke wielded he gavel. Both meetings were orderly and en'ausiastic.

At the journeymen's meeting a telegram was read from Cincinnati saying that a number of journeymen and saloonkeepers had purchased a controlling number of shares in the Banner Brewery, and that the pool was broken in that city. This announcement was received with cheers.

It was after 11 o'clock when the meetings broke up and the men formed in line in Thirteenth street. Police Capt. J. H. McCullagh and thirty-five men of the Fourteenth Precinct were present to see that no one assaulted the journeymen brewers.

A noticeable feature of the parade was the absence of flags and music, two small white banners bearing the legend "The Locked-Out Brewery Workmen" being the only emblems displayed. There were about six hundred men in the line of march, which lay through Fourth avenue to Third to Canal street, to Broadway to the City Hall, where the parade rested.

It was asserted that the trouble would assume another and a sensational phase during the present week, but what the sensation would be could not be ascertained.

Capt. McCullough sent his squad down to the Stewart Building, and they remained there, while Secretaries Herbrand, of the Brewerymen's National Union; Kurzenknabe, of the Journeymen Brewers' Union, and Charles Pommer, walking delegate of the Brewerymen's National Union; Kurzenknabe, of the Journeymen Brewers' Union, and Charles Pommer, walking delegate of the Brewerymen's National Union; Kurzenknabe, of the Journeymen Brewers' Union, and Charles Pommer, walking delegate of the Brewerymen's National Union; Kurzenknabe, of the Journeymen Brewers' Union, and Charles Pommer, walking delegate of the Brewerymen's Unions, went to see Mayor Hewitt.

A Chinaman with his pigtail curled around his head was waiting for an audience with his Honor, as the committee entered, and Mr. Hewitt asked him his business. He said he wanted to get married, and the Mayor said, in his characteristic manner: "I can't marry you without a woman." The Chinaman said he would go and get one.

The committee approached the Mayor, and Mr. Pommer said: "We are from the locked-out brewery workmen, who have been out now for two weeks. They had an agreement with the bosses for two years, and when it was presented again in March they refused to sign it, and issued a circular to that effect. They refused to recognize the organization of the m. B.

refused to recognize the organization of the m n.

"We have worked three years without a strike. April 16 we were locked out. Some of the bosses took some of the men back and refused to take others. We are out to-day, and we are willing to work, but the bosses will not recognize us."

The Mayor listened attentively and then answered: "Suppose they won't recognize you? There is no power on earth to force them to do so. They have the right to act their own pleasure about it the same as you have. It is unfortunate, and is generally the result of ignorance and sometimes of passion. I am willing to aid at all times in preventing such a collision. I will communicate any time you desire with the bosses, but if you insist upon their recognizing your organization I know it will be useless. They have the same rights under the law as you have.

"I have studied the law for years and think I know something about it. I am an approach the tone of my men have ever the law as you have.

"I have studied the law for years and think I know something about it. I am an employer, but none of my men have ever struck. As an employer I will deal with my men and not with a union. I presume the boss brewers take the same view and refuse to recognize your union. It you say you will go back, I will use my best endeavors to aid you."

Here the Mayor glanced at the members of the committee, who looked rather embarrassed, and he continued: "You may not like my answer. I have been attacked by the unions as being unfriendly to them, and the bossess say I am not on their side. Between the two I have not many friends on either side. I want to tell you the boycott is unlawful, and I believe you are engaged in boycotting the boss brewers.

"They have a lawful organization, and so have you. Then comes the inevitable struggle between you, and most always the workmen get the worst of it. Where pride is opposed to pride, as in this case, it is the question of the longest pocket. It is not a question of the longest pocket. It is not a question of the longest pocket. It is not a question of the longest pocket. It is not a question of wages, but of organization. The only way I see for you to do is to retreat in good order when you are beaten."

"The bosses are too much for you," continued the Mayor.

Mr. Pommer said: "They have too much capital."
The Mayor returned: "Yes, You have the same rights as they have, but you have lost the fight and are beaten. You must swallow

The Mayor got into a discussion with deal with these men as generous as possible."
The Mayor got into a discussion with Sergius Shevitch, who came in during which he declared the proscribed 'scab' a moral hero. He finally said that he would write to President Miles, of the United States Brewers' Association, and lay the request of the committee before him, with the understanding that they desired the brewers to recognize their men

Mayor Hewitt immediately wrote the fol-lowing letter to President Miles: I was waited on this morning by a committee of working brewers, who, after stating the fact, which faircady knew, that there was a controvers which faircasty knew, that there was a controversy between the employers and employees, which has resulted in a lockout and a boycott, asked me to bring the matter to your notice, with a view to a conference with a committee of workmen, for the purpose of arranging matters in dispute.

They stated that all attempts to get an interview had faited, and they appealed to me, as Mayor, to use my influence with you to secure such a confer-ence.

The request seems reasonable, and I therefore submit to your consideration whether it would not be well, in the interests of public order, that you should discuss the matter with this committee in the same caim and temperate manner in waica titely statement was made to me to-day.

Lest you should think that my interference is uncalled for, allow me to say that the public have an interest in securing employment for large numbers of men who have heretofore earned their living by delly inbor, and who are now deprived of the opportunity by reason of the difference of opinion the large property of the control of the difference of opinion o desire to interfere with your private business, and it will remain with you and the workmen to arrange the terms of accommodation, if it be practicable. I am sure, however, that the whole community will rejoice with me if you can arrive at a settlement of what cannot but be regarded as a serious interruption to the industrial operations of the community.

I may add that I frankly explained to the committee that the urewers appeared to be masters of the situation, and that the only appeal that was likely to be successful would be one which was addressed to your magnanimity and generosity.

Considering the sufferings of these workmen and their lamilies, I do not hesitate to make such an appeal, and I shall be very glad indeed to learn that it has been effectual in restoring the workmen to employment. Yours respectfully,

ABDUCTION CHARGED.

John B. Murray Said to Have Been Stolen from His Home-

His Wife Says His Sister-Agnes Is the Kidnapper.

With Four Mes She Came to the House in Washington Square, Broke Open the Door and Took Him Away in a Curriage -Mr. Murray Is Old and Blind and Hie Wife Young and Beautiful-He Is of the "Murray Hill" Murrays.

Mr. John B' Murray, after whose family Murray Hill is named, has disappeared from his home at 13 Washington place. His wife, who reported his absence to the police, asserts that he has been abducted by his sister Agnes, who lives in Connecticut.

Mr. Murray, who is very wealthy, used to be a prominent Wall street banker years ago. He is now over sixty years old. Twenty years ago his wife died, leaving him childless, and since that time until two years ago he lived the life of a hermit in the secon story of his four-story brick house at 18 Washington place. The basement and front

His sister Agnes, who has never married, lives on a stock farm in Connecticut. She was called there "Lady Agnes." She has had access to the house in Washington place. In 1886 Mr. Murray took Dr. Leiss, his wife and daughter Felissa for tenants. The daughter was a very tall, handsome brunette and twenty years old. Mr. Murray fell in love with her and proposed marriage. Dr. Leiss says he was very much opposed to his daughter making what he called a sacrifice of berself, but his wife favored it. Miss Felissa also favored Mr. Murray's proposal.

Bronson Murray, of 258 West Fifty-second street, the old man's brother, and his sister Agnes opposed the match. The opposition did no good and the marriage took place. Mrs. Murray's friends say Mr. Bronson Murray, plensed with the latter's devotion to her aged husband, finally became reconciled. Lady Agnes, however, was unforpiving, and, it is said, claimed that her brother was being made the victim of people who conspired to His sister Agnes, who has never married, it is said, claimed that her brother was being made the victim of people who conspired to get possession of his money.

About six months after his marriage Mr. Murray began to grow weak, and in a short time could not leave his room. A few months ago he became blind.

Last Saturday morning Miss Agnes Murray called at the Mercer street police station and told Sergt. Douglass, who was in charge, that she wanted a policeman to go to No. 13 Washington place with her. She said that she wanted him to prevent any breach of the peace, as she was going to get her brother out of the honse. She represented to the men at the sation that schemes were being practised upon her bro her similar in nature to those practised upon Lawyer Marah by Ann O'Delia Diss Debar.

Sergt, Douglass told Policeman Kiernan to go with the lady, and the two went over to Washington place.

There Lady Agnes asked the officer to break in a door leading to her brother's private apartment, but this the officer said he had no right to do, and they then went back to the station-house.

This morning Mrs. Murray went to the Mercer street station and there related to Sergt. Clark what happened at her house Saturday after the officer left.

She said that Lady Agnes went to the house with four men forced the door to her husband's private rooms and then seized him and carried him to a carriage in readiness at the front door, and in another minute husband, Lady Agnes and all were gone.

Mrs. Murray said that she would get a write.

Mrs. Murray said that she would get a writ of habeas corpus this morning. She was informed that her case was one for the courts, and that she must procure a warrant for the arrest of Lady Agnes or get out a writ of habeas corpus for the recovery of her husband before any active steps could be taken by the police.

before any active steps could be taken by the police.

Sergt. Clark says that Mrs. Murray and Bron-on Murray appeared leath to scenre a warrant for the arrest of Lady Agnes, charging her with abduction, because of their family relations, and that this morning they were hovering around the Mercer street station undecided as to what course to take.

A friend of Mrs. Murray asserts that Sergt. Douglass, of the Mercer street station, was present in citizen's dress and saw the whole proceedings of the abduction.
